

Could You

A Life Divided

Just a little bit of everything too much
Just a few too many words were told too hard
Just a little bit of truth inside our lies
Just a little too much rain inside your eyes
Just a little bit of everything in me
Cries a little bit too much for me to leave
Just a little bit of hope keeps me alive
While a little part of me already died

I don't want absolution
Just a little time for a new solution with you
Cause now I know it's been a bad illusion
That someone else could get me out of my confusion but you

Could you love me now? Now that I have changed?
I know hat you needed just someone who lights the way
Could you love me now? I'm somebody else
I promise that I killed the bitter man from yesterday

Just a little bit of everything too cold
Just a few too many thoughts were left untold
Just a little bit of water in our wine
Just a few too many clouds hang in our skin
Just a little bit of everything I need
Has gone a little bit too far for me too reach
Just a little bit of nothing by my side
Feels a little bit too little to stay alive

Did we see it coming? Our eyes were open wide
When did we stop talking and hide ourselves between the lies
So much left unspoken, we ran out of time
Can we break the silence? Can we start a brand new fire?