

Dependence

Absurd Minds

However great and complete is your world
It is self-contradictory and illusory
Show me the proof of this reality
No one came to tell you
That he has created you
The proof is yourself

You're obsessed with the idea of mortality
But it's self-contradictory and illusory

Trace it to its source and you will find
That before the world was - you were
Do it, depends on you, for you were it
Before the world was, already - you were

You are the space in which it moves
You are the time in which it lasts
You are the love that gives it life
You are the one that never dies

How hard and fast and strong are your creeds?
They are self-contradictory and illusory
Altogether transitory
Show me the proof of eternity
Whatever is time bound is momentary

Because you are or can be
Because you are or can be

You're obsessed by the idea of diversity
But it's self-contradictory and illusory

Trace it to its source and you will find
That before the world was - you were
Do it, depends on you, for you were it
Before the world was, already - you were

You are the space - moves
Time - lasts
Love - life
One that never dies

Trace it to its source and you will find
That before the world was - you were
Do it, depends on you, for you were it
Before the world was, already - you were

Trace it to its source and you will find
that before the world was - you were
Do it, depends on you, for you were it
Before the world was, already - you were

You are the space in which it moves
You are the time in which it lasts
You are the love that gives it life
You are the one that never dies