

Could've Been Anyone

Aimee Mann

It's so hard not to blame you
It's hard not to put
All the blame on you

'Cause you knew from the start
There was one little part
You would not let through

I'm sure there were
Even moments when you thought
You might someday
Finish what you'd begun

That could've been anyone
Could've been anyone
I lost my place in the sun
Well, never mind
It could've been anyone

So we all make mistakes
It just figures you'd Make me the biggest one

I was saving it up
Now it's spent
And I don't know
What I spent it on

But now I find
If you try hard enough
You can wear it down
'Til it's just about gone

'Til you could've been anyone
You could've been anyone
Lost your place in the sun
Well, never mind
Could've been anyone

Your pattern is different
From what it implies
The words may be true
But I realize
It isn't description
So much as disguise

Don't worry, you can learn
To live without
You've got a lifetime of
That to draw upon
And anyway

It could've been anyone
You lost your place in the sun
You lost your place in the sun
Oh, you lost your place in the sun
Well, never mind, never mind

It could've been anyone

Lost your place in the sun

Never mind, never mind

It could've been anyone

It could've been anyone

But never mind

You lost your place in the sun

I think that's enough now

You lost your place in the sun
