

The Wreckage

Alex G

Candlelight, you're looking new tonight
Lonely mind, maybe that's why
Wildfire, turning to ash was what bright
Every time, see you should run for your life

I could feel, you could know
We could finally learn how to love and let go
We could jump, you could fall
I can't let you be part of the wreckage
The wreckage at all

Different night, drinking the same wine
Butterflies, but what if it's dynamite
We'll be fine, just lean in and close your eyes
For a sweet demise, as your lips press against mine

I could feel, you could know
We could finally learn how to love and let go
We could jump, you could fall
I can't let you be part of the wreckage
The wreckage at all, no
At all

Don't jump you might fall
But we could falling love

I could feel, you could know
We could finally learn how to love and let go
We could jump, you could fall
I can't let you be part of the wreckage
The wreckage at all, no
The wreckage at all