I'm awake It was a half bad dream That was way too long My whole life it seemed That someone started digging me up Turned my headstone into dust The sun was swallowed by the trees The night was here for good You pulled my hand and my head up You put oxygen into my blood You walked me through the gates like we were visitors for the d ay You laid me down in the back seat And you drove till I woke up to hear you say You never lie but it's no fun to tell the truth I quess I never loved but I will see what I can do Got so much life to waste that I would take my days and hand th em to you I'm awake It was a half bad dream That was way too long My whole life it seemed That someone started digging me up Turned my headstone into dust I know you never lie but it's no fun to tell the truth I guess I never loved but I will see what I can do Got so much life to waste that I would take my days and hand th em to you I know you never lie but it's so square to tell the truth I guess I never loved but I will see what I can do Got so much life to waste that I would take my days and hand th em to you

To you.
