

Symmetrical

Allen Stone

The radius of your heart
Multiplied by the girl you are Divided by the man I can be
Equals perfect symmetry
The circumference of your waist
Is just a fraction of your grace
Your anatomy is laced with the cosmic energy of space

You seem so balanced
So here is my intention
I've got to have it
All your dimensions
'Cause I want that symmetrical love
That symmetrical love
The symmetrical love
That symmetrical love
Love, love, love, love

The angle of your spine
Is sending lightning bolts down mine
When those molecules combine
It's astronomically divine
The median of you and I
Is a number I cannot define
Equal parallel lines
Are lamented in time

You seem so balanced
So here is my intention
I've got to have it
All your dimensions
'Cause I want that symmetrical love
That symmetrical love
The symmetrical love
That symmetrical love
Love, love, love, love

You seem so balanced
So here is my intention
I've got to have it
All your dimensions
'Cause I want that symmetrical love
That symmetrical love
The symmetrical love
That symmetrical love
Love, love, love, love