

Upside

Allen Stone

It keeps turning me upside down
It keeps pulling me underground

Love is like gravity
It pulls me down equally
And draws me back every time
This love is a heavy kind
That love is my enemy
I keep it close, close to me
And I forget that the pain it caused
It's better to have loved than lost it

This love has no alibi
Still, it feeds my appetite

It keeps turning me upside down
It keeps pulling me underground
It keeps turning me upside down
It keeps pulling me underground

One and one is always two
I apologize for how I treated you
Nonetheless, I believe
That this will be the death of me
Sunrise, and night fold
I'm back behind, behind it all
And I will wait, I will take my time
Patience is a friend of mine

Your love has no alibi
Still, I fuel my appetite

It keeps turning me upside down
You keep pulling me underground
It keeps turning me upside down
It keeps pulling me underground

Well, consequence haunted me
Still, I follow helplessly

It keeps turning me upside down
You keep pulling me underground
It keeps turning me upside down
You keep pulling me underground
