

Rally

Allie Moss

When there's nothing I can say to make things better
I sling my arm around your shoulder like a sweater
Try to bear some of the burden that you're wearing
But I can't seem to lift you

There's nothing that makes me smile like your laughter
But this is not quite your happily ever after
Comedy or tragedy, we'll write this one together
I'll be there for you

We'll rally, rally
We'll rally around you
We'll rally, rally around you

When every gift I'd give is not befitting
And I see it in your eyes, the thought of quitting
I gather all my strength and then the people who love you
We're here now for you

A band of two keeps warmer than just one
And a strand of three is not easily broken
