Room Above The Club

American Music Club

Go ahead and help yourself if you think you can put me down You just want to see a king losing his crown Let's see some justice done in this dying town Go ahead and help yourself if you think you can force one more down

Yeah hello my new friend well I'm your little fool 'Cuz I get intimidated by the smell of death on you The road disappears before my car, yes I know what waits ahead I don't need no pictures on the wall sending me messages from the dead

In the room above the club

She cries herself to sleep every night

In the room above the club

Why is it so hard to treat her right

In the room above the club

There's always room for you

In the room above the club

Yeah they're just waiting for some lucky thing like you

Come on tell me a punchline that I know you're dying to tell 'Cuz I'm the only one that ever saw you pissing in your wishing well

Come on mister bartender, I only want one more tear 'Cuz some no-name asshole outside wants to knock me back into the land of fear

In the room above the club
You cry yourself to sleep every night
In the room above the club
Why is it so hard to treat you right
In the room above the club
Yeah there's always room for you
In the room above the club
They're just waiting for some lucky thing like you
In the room above the club
They're just waiting, yeah they're just waiting
In the room above the club
They're just waiting for some lucky thing like you
