

Blame Is A Killer

Amy Ray

There was something you gave
I'm sitting with as the seasons change
It lays unclaimed sometimes
Blame is a killer

I see the river that was and say what have I done
To see the forest for the trees
Truth is a villain

Did it steal you away from me
Or did they give me humanity?
Did they show me an autumn moon
When I needed my eyes of youth?

There's a big big love I need to be part of
I watch the leaves die while I wait
Time is unyielding

I see the days turn grey but for all our praying
We can't end this drought with rain
The gods are unwilling

Did it steal you away from me
Or did they give me humanity?
Did they show me an autumn moon
When I needed my eyes of youth?

Yeah you gotta roll brand new
And you gotta sing in tune
Yeah you got hands to hold
So many blooms to unfold
