A Problem Yet To Be Solved

Anata

"God created man in his own image" But ever since the fall of man Man is but a sinner who must do penance That is what God's servants say A true believer was hit by misfortune Although he had ;ed a sinless life "Can this be the will of an almighty god?" Clouded skies are reflecting his state of mind

Storm rages above him in the dead of night But also in his heart His strength and will have failed him And he's beginning to doubt Those were even features of a higher might

he feels emptiness Might reflect a void in heaven
And the absence of God

Devoid of content is the word of God Serves no purpose in conformity with his life

As all prosperity has been washed away And no support is to be accounted for from the "good" souls

He feels named and alone as there' no one to answer his prayers No angels, no intervention divine Would save him should he fall All hope is lost but now he dares not believe

Or live in the lie that used to be his shield

If the meaning of life;
To honor and live for God Proves to be a lie What's there to live for?

I deny that there ever was a god Or a meaning of life
other than reproduction
The rest is up to each and everyone of us To seek or create

Scourge
of the philosopher Can there be a god
if this world is a failure?
The problem is old but yet to be solved
So if there ever was a god Her's either dead,
powerless, or a sadist Only thing to know for sure He's unworthy of our worship
