

The End Of Prosperity

And Hell Followed With

The air becomes unbreathable as my flesh contorts with the flames.
This atrocity made in flesh once bore the face of a man.
Now in mockery of my former self,
my laughter fills the air,
the voracity of the wind silencing my last discernible voice.