Moon Over Brooklyn

Anne Murray

As I walk around, I see lots of people With their faces to the ground All that pressure that's comin' down They don't want no misery

And if you've seen enough already I'm sayin' this to you There's a moon over Brooklyn And it's comin' into view

The war in Asia took a heavy toll The price we paid was etched out in our souls Now this newborn baby lyin' at your door Can you let him in, can you show him more?

So come along with me I'll show you where the city meets the sky We'll vow to never, never say goodbye We won't have to hide, no, any more

And if we should kiss and fall in love It would be the right thing to do 'Cause there's a moon over Brooklyn And it's comin' into view

There's a moon over Brooklyn

There's a moon over Brooklyn And it's comin' into view
