It's 5 o'clock in the morning And I give up on sleep life (?) with a conscience and I decide to walk away So I find my posessions And slide from your room Ignore all regrets I push myself into the street I, I, I don't want to talk I've said my piece and I'll just go now I would love to believe and be? content to wait with you again At 6 o'clock in the morning you'll awake all alone and pause for a moment to damn or bless me as you wish I, I, I don't want to talk I've said my piece and I'll just go now I would love to believe and be? content to wait with you again I agree, it would never be right and I'll just go now, and id love to believe and id be content to wait with you again, again, again I, I, I don't want to talk I've said my piece and I'll just go now I would love to believe and be? content to wait with you again
