These Silent Hearts

Armin van Buuren

All the sounds begin to rush in And further alter our perception The silence that we keep in this sleep Is rising from its slumber again What we see we find is intertwined With all our beliefs, manifesting in daily life It all feels pure and simple now

These silent hearts We hold within our hands Within my heart The rush is just the same These silent hearts Protected from the dark And let silence be broken