

I remember laughing, with tears in my eyes
At the things you used to say
Sitting over coffee, whenever you'd be passing by
When we'd just talk the hours away
An eye for a bargain, always worth a look
You found me the guitar I'd never sell
Always the mender, whatever it took
To give it back to me ringing like a bell

Oh how quickly you slipped away
All the things I never got to say, yeah
Now you're free
You lived a life to the full right to the end (I remember)
Memories, of the times gone past but I'll see you again
I know I'll see you again

All about money was to you a means to an end
Just like the car that you drove
To you it was nothing, to lend a hand to a friend
No limit to how far you'd go
Phased by nothing, even in your darkest time
You just kept yourself locked away
You fought like a lion, the hardest fight of your life
Lived your last days on the crest of a wave

Oh how quickly you slipped away
All the things I never got to say, yeah
Now you're free,
You lived a life to the full right to the end (I remember)
Memories, of the times gone past but I'll see you again
I know I'll see you again yeah
