Throw a Penny

Little child, I have found If I stood up and looked around I'd see a brand new face staring right back at me I believe, I am sure That I'm taller then I was before Building a brand new bridge into sincerity But it's the times like this, we must learn to grow

Throw a penny for my children, they are going down When the light shines down much brighter, many souls are found And can't believe what they're saying in the overground Throw a penny for my children going down

Listen to the wise man as he breathes He's really loving me (loving me) He must be loving me (loving me) At night I turn my face into the wind And I whisper secretly, what means the most to me And bring him close

Make it bad, make it good Make it easy to be understood I see a velvet day breaking across the sky I believe, I am sure I am taller then I was before Building a brand new bridge I know I'm gonna try But it's the times like this, we must find out why

Throw a penny for my children they are going down When the light shines down much brighter, many souls are found And I can't believe what they're saying in the overground Throw a penny for my children going down

Throw a penny for my children, for my children going down Throw a penny for my children, for my children going down Throw a penny for my children, for my children going down Throw a penny for my children, for my children going down (fade)
