

Implore The Negative

Benighted

Implore The Negative

I woke up running through that bright hallway
Without being able to distinguish the end
Shiny walls of organic matter
Spread the sickness
Forgotten passenger lights
Drowning, I implore the negative

Spread the sickness

I hear in the distance the howling of my memories, smothered in the galloping darkness I want to run away from

They try to instil their poison in me again

Contaminating the cave where the darkness lies that I don't want to see

I cast you out of my mind
I implore the negative

Cold promising hand

Stray thoughts slow down

Falling piece by piece

my carnal prison floats in the air bare walls whisper indistinct words to me stay away from reality

I forgot any reason to live the black claws sink into the flesh, reveal the light from below an endless fall towards a deliverance I didn't want

Even though I begged for it

I fucking begged for it

There is no turning back

I won't run anymore

Indistinct words from invisible mouth

Unspoken language sliding behind my eyes, silent and parasitic

Threatening dimension through the hole

Unable to make a rational choice

My lips burn as the passenger smiles in the mirror

Spread the sickness