

Maybe

Bethany Joy Lenz

Maybe I was wrong
Maybe I was looking in all the wrong places
Maybe I was wrong
Maybe I was searching in all the wrong places

If I knew that you were coming for me
I would have stayed in one place
If I knew that you were coming for me
I would have made my peace

Maybe I was wrong
Maybe I was dreamless and full of suffering
Maybe I was wrong
Every time you said you loved me I went running on
My own

But I can see you now
I'm coming home

Yeah I was wrong
Maybe I was looking in all the wrong faces
Maybe I was wrong
Maybe I was searching in all the wrong places

If I knew that you were coming for me
I would have stayed in one place
If I knew that you were coming for me
I would have made my peace

But I can see you now
I'm coming home

I have my life in on my hands
I journey through the promise land
Talking what I can and never looking back
But I feel so far so fast

And all the years of moving past
You in the crowd are catching up at last
And there you are looking at me with eyes full of love
Giving me another chance to come home and dance

I make my place now
I throw the pain down
Walk towards the light
And thank the world

Before I say goodnight...
