

American Hymns

Beware of Darkness

We are just kids singing American hymns
About a world that doesn't care that we exist
Open your eyes, baby, this if our life
Do you think we'll look back and say we never lived?
Oh baby!

All we eat is adderal and yoga in the morning
Sweat out the tequila from last night's party
Namaste from the most perfect place in the world
I love you cause we never talk about the things that matter
We know we love getting fucked up more than we care about each other
Marry me as the sun sets on this day

This is everything, this is everything we wanted and more

Cause we are just kids singing American hymns
About a world that doesn't care that we exist
Open your eyes, baby, this if our life
Do you think we'll look back and say we never lived?
Oh baby!

Can I take you out tonight? We'll go stare at our cell phones
Never say a single word or look at each other
This is the closest I've felt to anyone before
Hungover and dreamy eyed we stare into the ocean
Supposed to be the best time of our life but we're broken
Where boredom is the passion of our lives

This is everything, this is everything we wanted and more

Cause we are just kids singing American hymns
About a world that doesn't care that we exist
Open your eyes, baby, this if our life
Do you think we'll look back and say we never lived?

Oh, to be young, dumb, and free
Life is too short to care about anything
Oh, to be young, dumb, and free
Life is too short to care about anything

Cause we are just kids singing American hymns
About a world that doesn't care that we exist
Open your eyes, baby, this if our life
Do you think we'll look back and say we never lived?

Oh, to be young, dumb, and free
Life is too short to care about anything
Oh, to be young, dumb, and free
Life is too short to care about anything