

You Live in a World All Your Own

Bill Monroe

You tell me that you're discontented
You say that I'm always to blame
But after you left me, you're alone, Dear
I've been blue but I won't be the same

You live in a world all your own
A world that I wished we could share
But I guess it's too late 'cause you're leavin'
I've been blue for I know you don't care

I thought that you always will love me
Like you did when we both made our vows
But now you are breaking my heart, Dear
I've been blue but I'll get by somehow

Someday you'll regret your mistake, Dear
Just as sure as there's a sun in the sky
You left me to try and forgive you
When you leave, you can call it goodbye
