All The Things That Are Left Behind

Blue Rodeo

I was on the sidewalk As you walked away I fell from your pocket As you made your escape I was on the staircase As you ran for the train Like the keys on the nightstand By a bed left unmade

Like all the things that are left behind Yeah it hurts for a while but then you find Some days it's just better to feel dead inside Until that day You want to love again

I wanted to tell you I could see all along You pretending to forget While you're out on the town So I sat in half knowing And I try to forget The last time you wanted me And I lay in your bed

Like all the things that are left behind Yeah it hurts for a while but then you find Some days it's just better to feel dead inside Until that day You want to love again

So it's the little things That cut us so deep Some things can't be replaced Most just come and go Do you remember When I was the one Not tossed in a corner Forgotten and gone

Like all the things that are left behind Yeah it hurts for a while but then you find Some days it's just better to feel dead inside Until that day You want to love again Until that day You want to love again You want to love again
