Tempest

Bob Dylan

The pale moon rose in its glory Out on the Western town She told a sad, sad story Of the great ship that went down

It was the fourteenth day of April Over the waves she rode Sailing into tomorrow To a golden age foretold

The night was black with starlight The seas were sharp and clear Moving through the shadows The promised hour was near

Lights were holding steady Gliding over the foam All the lords and ladies Heading for their eternal home

The chandeliers were swaying From the balustrades above The orchestra was playing Songs of faded love

The watchman, he lay dreaming
As the ballroom dancers twirled
He dreamed the Titanic was sinking
Into the underworld

Leo took his sketchbook He was often so inclined He closed his eyes and painted The scenery in his mind

Cupid struck his bosom And broke it with a snap The closest woman to him He fell into her lap

He heard a loud commotion Something sounded wrong His inner spirit was saying That he couldn't stand here long

He staggered to the quarterdeck No time now to sleep Water on the quarterdeck Already three foot deep

Smokestack was leaning sideways Heavy feet began to pound He walked into the whirlwind Sky splitting all around

The ship was going under
The universe had opened wide

The roll was called up yonder The angels turned aside

Lights down in the hallway Flickering dim and dull Dead bodies already floating In the double bottom hull

The engines then exploded Propellers they failed to start The boilers overloaded The ship's bow split apart

Passengers were flying Backward, forward, far and fast They mumbled, fumbled, and tumbled Each one more weary than the last

The veil was torn asunder 'Tween the hours of twelve and one No change, no sudden wonder Could undo what had been done

The watchman lay there dreaming
At forty five degrees
He dreamed that the Titanic was sinking
Dropping to her knees

Wellington he was sleeping His bed began to slide His valiant heart was beating He pushed the tables aside

Glass of shattered crystal Lay scattered roundabout He strapped on both his pistols How long could he hold out?

His men and his companions Were nowhere to be seen In silence there he waited for Time and space to intervene

The passageway was narrow There was blackness in the air He saw every kind of sorrow Heard voices everywhere

Alarm-bells were ringing To hold back the swelling tide Friends and lovers clinging To each other side by side

Mothers and their daughters Descending down the stairs Jumped into the icy waters Love and pity sent their prayers

The rich man, Mister Astor
Kissed his darling wife
He had no way of knowing
It'd be the last trip of his life

Calvin, Blake and Wilson
Gambled in the dark
Not one of them would ever live to
Tell the tale on the disembark

Brother rose up 'gainst brother In every circumstance They fought and slaughtered each other In a deadly dance

They lowered down the lifeboats From the sinking wreck There were traitors, there were turncoats Broken backs and broken necks

The bishop left his cabin
To help others in need
Turned his eyes up to the heavens
Said, "The poor are yours to feed"

Davey the brothel-keeper Came out dismissed his girls Saw the water getting deeper Saw the changing of his world

Jim Dandy smiled He never learned to swim Saw the little crippled child And he gave his seat to him

He saw the starlight shining Streaming from the East Death was on the rampage But his heart was now at peace

They battened down the hatches But the hatches wouldn't hold They drowned upon the staircase Of brass and polished gold

Leo said to Cleo
I think I'm going mad
But he'd lost his mind already
Whatever mind he had

He tried to block the doorway To save all those from harm Blood from an open wound Pouring down his arm

Petals fell from flowers
'Til all of them were gone
In the long and dreadful hours
The wizard's curse played on

The host was pouring brandy
He was going down slow
He stayed right to the end and he
Was the last to go

There were many, many others Nameless here forever more They never sailed the ocean Or left their homes before

The watchman, he lay dreaming
The damage had been done
He dreamed the Titanic was sinking
And he tried to tell someone

The captain, barely breathing Kneeling at the wheel Above him and beneath him Fifty thousand tons of steel

He looked over at his compass And he gazed into its face Needle pointing downward He knew he'd lost the race

In the dark illumination
He remembered bygone years
He read the Book of Revelation
And he filled his cup with tears

When the Reaper's task had ended Sixteen hundred had gone to rest The good, the bad, the rich, the poor The loveliest and the best

They waited at the landing And they tried to understand But there is no understanding On the judgment of God's hand

The news came over the wires And struck with deadly force Love had lost its fires All things had run their course

The watchman he lay dreaming
Of all the things that can be
He dreamed the Titanic was sinking
Into the deep blue sea