In Battle There Is No Law

Bolt Thrower

In the fight for existence and life There is no law And in the presence of eternal death There is no law And as the struggle for power and domination prevails In the arising slaughter It shall be every man for himself As in battle there is no law

Countless numbers die in war's path Armies falling to our wrath Warriors of power marching to fight Destruction, killing, all that's in sight Raise the shield or be cast into death Take a final look, your final breath Innocent victims of war No turning back, in battle there is no law

Awaiting the slaughter, time stands still Thoughts fade away, so does your will Enemy close in, blood on their minds You won't die once, die a thousand times Soldiers of hatred, killing corps of war Bodies litter the field, what was it for? Stench of death, no victory for this night Plead for mercy, you have no right
