Fiddle

Step into the spotlight Of this traveling show Went across the room Those big blue eyes look in my soul I was singing fatal love How was I to know That boy would change my plans

Louisiana soldiers seem to have it all As that old red curtain fell I began to fall I was packing up my case He was waiting down the hall When the real show began

Cause to win my heart strings And promised me the moon Played me hard Until I cried out of tune Took my song And he left me worn out in riddle Played me like a fiddle

Well I should have gone And taken his boat and his backside When he went and told me one thing And then turned around and lied Well I lost all my dignity But I sure kept my pride And he was sure good for song

Cause to win my heart strings And promised me the moon Played me hard Until I cried out of tune Took my song And he let me worn out in riddle Played me like a Hey

Now ladies you beware Of those in unassuming eyes He might look so innocent But its just a disguise HeA's just overcompensating For a total pack of lies In his little tiny heartA:

Cause to win my heart strings And promised me the moon Played me hard Until I cried out of tune Took my song And he let me pissed of in riddle Played me like a fiddle
