Brandon Rhyder

I've been crazy, I've been blinded I've been walking down the wrong path of life I've been broke down, I've been mistreated To ever think that our love had a chance to survive I know I haven't held you as much As much as I should I know I haven't given you everything Everything that I could If I promise tonight, to change my life Would you come back, or have I waited to long If I made things right, if I started tonight Would you come back to me Or have I waited too long I have been faithful, I have never strayed And I know that there are times I don't see things your way But I'm still here, and I will never leave And if this whole thing doesn't work out It won't be because of me If I promise toonight, to change my life Would you come back, or have I waited too long If I made things right, if I started tonight Would you ocme back to me Or have I waited too long I remember a wise old man telling me You better hold on to what you've got It'll slip right though your fingers And you don't know what you've got until its gone Until it is gone If I promise tonight, to change my life Would you come back, or have I waited to long If I made things right, if I started tonight Would you come back to me Or have I waited too long Too long Have I waited too long Too long, too long, too long My baby. . ..