The Bite Marked Heart

Brother Ali

Love struck like dumb luck See the bite marked heart come untucked Still scared of the dark yet I'm not Afraid to fall scale the wall that you construct Must be the tears of joy that appeared Rose from the morsel of sole that you bared Crawled out of your stare Warm to my ears Cause ohs and yeahs are all I can hear Every wish is a prayer Each glistening tear whispers in the ear Convening clouds that linger in the atmosphere Leading places for the blissfully sincere Fore long although sorrows overflow Horizon no longer holds all our woes Roll down throw out the cold ground below Sky glows golden the whole garden grow

This oath I bestow
Triplet of tones spoken mighty slow
Echo a language from a long time ago
Trust me I know you don't even know