

Twin Fantasy (Those Boys)

Car Seat Headrest

I haven't looked at the sun for so long
I'd forgotten how much it hurts to

The show ain't over
They'll keep on going
They'll keep on laughing
And fucking around

Off into the distance
Those two brothers
Those two lovers
And their smooth-cocked adventures

I haven't looked at the sun for so long
I'd forgotten how much it hurts to

They just want to be one
Walk off into the sun
They're not kissing
They're not fucking
They're just having fun

I haven't looked at the sun for so long
I'd forgotten how much it hurts to

[x2]
They were connected
At the back of the head
They got a conduit
Their minds are the same

(This is the part of the song where Will gives up. He dissociates himself from his own romance until it becomes just a fantasy. This is not something that could happen to him; this is something that takes place only in his mind. But he blinks now, and shakes himself awake. He has rejoined society. Come, dear children, call no more. He has only lyrics now)

When I come back you'll still be here [x2]

When I come back you'll still be here [x8]
(When you come back I'll still be here) [x6]
