Nothing To Prove

Caroline's Spine

I should be able to get yourself Nothing given means nothing can get kicked around I fear you and I occasionally think too Your insecurity makes living life tough on me, but

I don't know if you feel this way all the time Hear me, I don't think you're right And no...you got nothing to prove

And I ponder why you're always trying to take what's mine Hear me, I won't fight you No...you got nothing to prove

I'm alway able to get over myself I still remember how you helped me figure it out But I fear you and I occasionally think too Your insecurity pollutes your path to purity, but

I don't know if you feel this way all the time Hear me, I don't think you're right No...you got nothing to prove

And I ponder why you're always trying to take what's mine Hear me, I won't fight you No...it's not my way

I guess now you know why I never call...

We should be able to get over ourselves Time in small quantity, I think, would work very well

I don't know if you feel this way all the time Hear me, I don't think you're right No...you got nothing to prove

And I ponder why you're always trying to take what's mine Hear me, I won't fight you No...it's not my way