Seven Prophecies

Centinex

Embalmed in a frozen tomb
Beneath the moon
I face the naked dawn
I stand still and stear through out the river
A distant chant returns me to the past

You, my Goddess, My queen of dark temptation You feed my hunger with black sinful love

Freezing lust to my infernal mistress Seven prophecies forsooth eternally Summon your blood, my wine, dark erotica Seven prophecies forsooth eternally

Searching for a griefull pleasure A shadow or a sign from my coldest bride Caressed by a guiding wind Leads me away to the horizon of tears

A burning vision,
they are my wings
Into the flames, I fly
I kissed the sunset,
I adored the night
A silent dance infront of me

Like a portal with velvet lights
I am now one with moonlight
Like dragon shadows, like elves and stars
I sealed the grief in a dreamscape

Like illusions can fall apart
Like stones can turn to dust
The everblazing moon can be darkened
Immortal is my passion
Despair and memories
Forever I will fill your existence

Into the deep horizon I fly Searching for the new born dawn You my Goddess, My queen of dark temptation One day we will forever sleep
