

I've Just Found Another Reason For Loving You

Charley Pride

Somehow you know just what it takes to please me
Sometimes I think that you can read my mind
And when the weigh of the world is on my shoulders
You're there to share my burdens everytime
If I could count the reasons why I love you
I'm sure there would be a million or two
And it'll curse to me that I can't live without you
And I've just found another reason for loving you

I always start my days with lots of sunshine
It's in your smile and in your morning kiss
And more than once I've asked myself the question
How could any man ask for more than this
If I could count the reasons...
And I've just found another reason for loving you
