Esmeralda, the bell tolls for thee!

A tortured soul in a twisted frame I'm the one who tolls the bell. In a cathedral tower, that is Notre Dame.
...Notre Dame!

I wave high above to the crowd down below, Though heaven help me. I killed for love now there can be no Sanctuary.

No-one would weep as I go to my grave, Only she who knew me. The arrows of one betrayed, life's hollow mockery.

Rings loud in my ears, the bitter call of their jeers. Cruel laughter drowns my tears.

Chorus
On top of the world,
I'm falling to the ground.
hear the bells cry Sanctuary!
On top of the world,
I'm deafened by the sound.
hear the bells cry Sanctuary!

Grotesque, outcast and alone, they used ropes to bind me. They broke a whip across my back to remind me who I am.

She was beauty,
I was the beast.
My Esmeralda.
Bitter sweet she was caught and released
by this hunchback of Notre dame.

In anger and shame, bearing torches they came. this fool was not to blame.

(Chorus)

Up here I'm safe and on my guard. While bloodlust paves the boulevard. These hallowed walls are all around, How long before madmen Tear them down to the ground?

(Chorus)

Cry Sanctuary!
