

Open Doors, Open Eyes

Corey Crowder

Sleeping somewhere else tonight
Stop the sound before it starts to fight you
I'll wake up to your smile again tomorrow

Read between the lines this time
Darkness seems to fight the lines of Light between our doors we hold so tight

So open the doors and let it all out
Tell all the neighbors what this is about
Oh, it's me and you and were making it on our own

Left and right took it's toll tonight
Which way to move there's no telling whos right or wrong
And in this case I think were right

Weve changed our course so many times
No reason describes but they continue to try
To mark a brand we wont accept as ours

So open the doors and let it all out
Tell all the neighbors what this is about
