

To Be with You Once More

Crystal Ball

Born into a mystery, fragile and forlorn
Everything's new to me, no worries no scorn

Just a helpless dependant, kept so safe and warm
By the arms of a parent, protected from harm

How I hated those schooldays and how they could burn
Your wisdom brought new ways, life's lessons to learn

And if I felt troubled you'd reach out your band
Even if they were doubled they'd simply be banned

You're the path that I follow
You're the soul I adore
I would beg steal or borrow
To be with you once more

Youth brought excitement, so free and so wild
But you knew what that meant
Through the eyes of this child

So you followed my journey, out into the world
Felt proud that you knew me as my life unfurled

But now in the twilight, it's all come to an end
And I've lost that bright light on which I depend

The one I relied on has now slipped away
And knowing that you're gone still haunts me today
