

Just My Luck

Dawes

Just my luck you'd walk into this party
Just my luck you'd show up with my friends It's not the words that they reduce me to or where your life is leading to It's the same reason that it always has been
It's just my luck

Just my luck I never said I loved you Just my luck it completely slipped my mind
It's not my colder-hearted tendencies that keeps you from being here with me
Or the universe's brilliant designs
It's just my luck

I spend my whole life moving forwards but understand it looking back
Like watching last night's tapes in the middle of a game
I should know how this thing works now, I should accept it as a fact
That there's really nothing out there I can blame

Just my luck this goodbye could get so casual
Just my luck I still talk like I got a chance It's not because I do not clearly see that you are finally done with me
No I figured that out long in advance
It's not because I don't know this dance
This has happened enough times for use to see
It's not because you're not meant for me
It's just my luck
