Soulless

Death Angel

WE arrive, and are blinded by twisted rubble, and piercing light Screaming sounds of the sirens Rip through the air on this sleepless night

Take this boy, and remind him Just how fragile his un-sewn life His daily dose of destruction Sleeps with his gun, his surrogate wife

Soulless ghost in the air Helpless feeling of despair Broken Body, Scarred mind They're Soulless

Men, women, and children Huddle together, or stand and fight Enemies, or our allies Can't tell the difference. He's blind with fright

He reads letters from Mother Shares photographs from another life Falling to friendly fire Today was this heroes final fight
