

It's not that i've been waiting for these scars to leave It's not that I've been searching for something new It's just that I've been chasing this dream for so long
That I can't even start to tell you where I went wrong I've always tried to hide my fears now it's time to dry these tears and keep walking

Give me the keys and I will open the door to my heart Until you do just let me breathe and we'll go far
It's just that I've been chasing this dream for so long
That I can't even start to tell you where I went wrong
My sister is not here to comfort me, my brother is raising a family, a family

Every time I wake and every time I go to sleep
I think about this journey I will make and I feel Am I strong enough to say good-bye when the day comes, I don't know
Is there anybody taking care of my home now while I'm gone
And I know today I'll have to go and I just keep on walking
Just walking with you
