

Crystal Palace

Deine Lakaien

Daffodils, grey birds, the autumn chill
Ladies from strange southern lands
Roses wild, trees to hide, yesterday
All of a sudden no yoke

Welcome to crystal palace
Feel free to taste a wine
Welcome you foreign stranger
Don't be afraid, melt the ice
Welcome to all of you dreamers
Feel free to change your mind
Just say goodbye to old teachers
Don't feel ashamed that you often lied

Lemon grass, silent heat, time to spend
While seconds drop from your hand
Waters deep, lackeys creep, two birds got killed
Killed with one stone, can't prevent

Welcome to crystal palace
Feel free to taste a wine
Welcome you foreign stranger
Don't be afraid, melt the ice
Welcome to all of you dreamers
Feel free to change your mind
Just say goodbye to old teachers
Don't feel ashamed that you often lied

Fleur-de-lis, paradise, chances you've missed
A sign from the lady's left hand
White men spy, tears running down the cheek
No matter how hard they will play

Welcome to crystal palace
Feel free to taste a wine
Welcome you foreign stranger
Don't be afraid, melt the ice
Welcome to all of you dreamers
Feel free to change your mind
Just say goodbye to old teachers
Don't feel ashamed that you often lied