

Westbound Train

Dennis Brown

Whoo, ooh, yeah!

Last night I weren't at home, I just went for a stroll.
But when I returned, I saw this note,
Underneath my door, stating:

You'll never ever see me again,
So now our love must end.
You'll never ever see me again,
My friend, 'cause:

I'll be taking this train, I'll be taking westbound train.
I'll be going to place,
Where there is happiness.
So, you'll never ever see me again,
So now our love must end.
You'll never ever see me again
My friend.
No, you'll never ever see me.

Whooa... cherry baby.
I've gotta find you baby.

'Cause:
I'll never live in a world like that,
You want to make me feel sad.
And now I'm in very, very steep position.
So that's why this train, won't miss me,
'Cause I've got to find my cherry baby.

You'll never ever see me again,
So now our love must end.
You'll never ever see me again,
My friend, 'cause:

I'll be taking this train, I'll be taking westbound train.
I'll be going to place,
Where there is happiness.

I've gotta find you baby.
Whooa... cherry baby

'Cause:
I'll never live in a world like that,
You want to make me feel sad.
And now I'm in very, very steep position.
So that's why this train, won't miss me,
'Cause I've got to find my cherry baby.
