Traveler's Song

Well I'm on the road And I've traveled so far Through the roads and winding hills It seems my travels never still And I ride through the wind, rain, sleet or snow And will I ever stop if I do not for a while

And the road where I live Always seems to call (seems to call my name) And the road where I live Always seems to call... my name

And I have no worries And my troubles seem far away All is peaceful in this space With a smile across my face I don't need no one to show me all life has to give They say I have no one But I like the way it is

My name, my name, my name ...

I don't have no worry About people and what they say Because I live a different way Was born to never stay
