

Thanks For Everything

Dismantled

This is for myself, as selfish as it gets, and the only thing that I have left
But you don't understand, 'cause you're the standard wave
You got your balance down, but your vision is so plain.

The pictures in my head are great! I prefer them over you.
There's nothing you can do or say, to make me ever change the way I am.

I'm the one that let you in, and you walked all over me, so thanks for everything
Well, that was my mistake, and now I'll have to pay So I'm selling all these dreams, just so that I could stay
And watch it fade away, into all this grey
I can do so much but you've all got me caged.

Tell me, things will always work out We are really on your side! It's alright! We feel your pain!
Too late, all is said and done now Go ahead and make the calls, no one's home.
I've gone away.
