

Not To Leave The Power

Dorsal Atlântica

Rumors about delaying the election, a synonym of calling it off.
They want to break into the Drain-traps to arrest the drug dealers.
Probably to inspect the Undergrounds with a good excuse.
Rumors are fast and efficient.

Not to Leave the Power

They broadcast an electional propaganda during the hardworkers sleep.
They were taught to sleep with their TV sets turned on that get off the air when work begins.

Hardworkers keep indifferent even under a threat of not voting many clandestines disappeared from meetings, they surrendered expecting a reward (or forgiveness for such a great attitude).

[IAN:]

"I must forget about my grand mom sleeping in front of TV set my girlfriend left me, my parents are growing older, this God that never comes.

My world was the room, now my answers are behind the wall.
My world was the room, that's what they told me".

[IAN's mom watches the electional propaganda and says:]

"These eyes don't lie. The face and the eyes changed but this opposition candidate was our president 20 years ago, the same folks of yesterday".

[IAN:]

"All possible efforts not to leave the power".