

The Rock

Doug Stone

She used to stand at the jukebox with her hand full of change quarters and teardrops falling like rain the reason she played all those sad songs i'm the rock she broke her heart on

she was so tender and i was too tough she gave her all and i held back too much she turned to me and i turned to stone i'm the rock she broke her heart on

Now there's someone new by her side tonight she's over me i can see in her eyes they'll be together and i'll be the lone i'm the rock she broke her heart on

she turned to me and i turned to stone i'm the rock she broke her heart on
