

Five Four

Dry the River

Haunted by my failures
In the floodlights of a stadium or a car park
History in the bleachers
With the rounded facial features of a child
Somehow love has gone
Like anyone, I've been searching for the cause
We were restless in the darkness
We were waiting at the Stations of the Cross

I'm the one who needs you
All my friends don't come when I call them
On my knees, I need you
Said my vows, but somehow I forget

At my funeral anniversary
I will still be at the mercy of my girlfriends
Brush me into glory
Telling all too many stories of my [?]
I'm invisible in the physical and that's how I'll behave
You can get my information
From the Book of Revelation anyway

I'm the one who needs you
All my friends don't come when I call them
On my knees, I need you
Said my vows, but somehow I forget

It's the weight of love
That we're so fearful of
That we're so fearful of

I'm the one who needs you
Said my vows, but somehow I forget

It's the weight of love
That we're so fearful of
That we can't figure out

After all, I need you
Said my vows, but somehow I forget
