I thought it'd feel different playing Wembley 80,000 singing with me It's what I've been chasing 'cause this is the dream

When it was all over, I cleared out the room Grabbed a couple beers, just me and you Then we start talking the way that we do

Ain't it funny how the simplest things in life can make a man Little moments that pass us by Oh, but I remember

The first kiss, the first night, the first song that made you c ry

The first drink, red wine, on a step in Brooklyn
I still feel the first fight, but we both made it out alive
And I can't wait to make a million more first times

The greatest thing that I have achieved Is four little words down on one knee You said, "Darling, are you joking?" And I just said, "Please."

Ain't it funny how the simplest things in life can make a man Little moments that pass us by Oh, but I remember

The first kiss, the first night, the first song that made you c ry

The first look in your eyes when I said, "I love you."

I can still feel the butterflies from when we stumbled home that $\ensuremath{\mathsf{t}}$ night

I can't wait to make a million more first times

Ain't it funny how the simplest things in life can make a man Little moments that pass us by Oh, but I remember

The first kiss, first night, first song that made you cry First dance in moonlight in your parents' garden I can't wait to see everything that's yet to be Our first child, and then a million more first times
