

Iron Dragon

Electric Six

It took ten years to get there,
Twenty more to come back
To your war

And when I fired up my only flair
You instructed your battalions
To ignore

It was the longest game of chicken;
Who would be the first
To blink first?

Thank God I had a bucket to get sick in,
Your injection couldn't
Make me feel worse

From the hills I saw you in your courtyard,
Crazed for merry drink.
And the nights here give me
Too much time to think
To think about the day

You hitched your horse to a rusty wagon
I hitched my wagon to a dead horse
Iron Dragon, won't you stay as a matter of course?
Iron Dragon, won't you stay 'til the end of the wars?

If I could only find a star to put my wish in,
I'd be the main attraction
That you're due

I remember the words of your magician;
"You gotta melt down fifty jokes
To make a fool"

From here I see you fortifying
For a cold December.
And it hits me now
That you might not remember
Remember the time

You hitched your horse to a rusty wagon
I hitched my wagon to a dead horse
Iron Dragon, won't you stay as a matter of course?
Iron Dragon, won't you stay 'til the end of the wars?

How will this be recorded?
Will it be a big display
In the museum?

Will my loyalty be rewarded?
Or will they just say,
"must've sucked to be him"?

Whoever finds my scribbles,
Well I hope you read to the end
'Cause in the end

I reunite with my old friend

You hitched your horse to a rusty wagon

I hitched my wagon to a dead horse

Iron Dragon, won't you stay as a matter of course?

Iron Dragon, won't you stay 'til the end of the wars?

Save the world, save the world,

I'm the new Micheal Jackson

Save the world, save the world,

Save the world

Save the world, save the world,

I'm the new Micheal Jackson

Save the world, save the world,

Save the world
