

Elephant

Emily's Army

I have spent too many days
With that look upon my face.
Where it's Monday and the weekend didn't feel like it took place
There's a story here a 'waitin, for me to be in it's heart.
You can't just sit down in this car, and just wait for it to start.

You don't know
You don't know
You don't know
You don't know

I can find myself a reason, to run through this so-called treason
But I don't know where to find my alibi to stay inside.
There's a moon, and a sun, and some boredom and some fun.
Outside the waves are coming and you can't find the time to love just one!

I just feel like an elephant
Living at a slower pace
If I don't pick up my speed my life will fly right past my face
You don't know
You don't know
You don't know
You don't know

I just feel like an elephant
Living at a slower pace
If I don't pick up my speed my life will fly right past my face
You don't know
You don't know
You don't know
You don't know
