

Words

Emma Drobná

Words slipping through your lips
Your touch is more than kiss
Words deep and meaningful
More than just powerful
They say I'm crazy
They say it's dangerous
I know I realise
It's so ridiculous.

Your eyes
The way you look at me
Your smile
The way it makes me feel
Your time
The way you let things be
Your hands
The way you hold on me.

How come
You felt right on your own
Whilst I've been waiting home alone
And now
You're texting on your phone
It's her
I know I should have known

Words slipping through your lips
Your touch is more than kiss
Words deep and meaningful
More than just powerful
They say I'm crazy
They say it's dangerous
I know I realise
It's so ridiculous.

Words slipping through your lips
Your touch is more than kiss
Words deep and meaningful
More than just powerful
They say I'm crazy
They say it's dangerous
I know I realise
It's so ridiculous.

Those eyes
You give her the same stare
That smile
Says love me if you dare
I thought
I'd change you like a fool
You play
Like she's another tool.

And then it all fades
We no longer get along
You turn away and tell me
If I've never done so wrong

I've never done so wrong
I've never done so wrong
I swear I've never done so wrong
I've never done so wrong.

Words slipping through your lips
Your touch is more than kiss
Words deep and meaningful
More than just powerful
They say I'm crazy
They say it's dangerous
I know I realise
It's so ridiculous.

Words slipping through your lips
Your touch is more than kiss
Words deep and meaningful
More than just powerful
They say I'm crazy
They say it's dangerous
I know I realise
It's so ridiculous.

I know I realise
It's so ridiculous.

I know I realise
It's so ridiculous.
