

They Don't Really Know

Enbound

He finds it hard, allowing one near
Pushing away, keeping clear
Gently asking, leave me alone
No reaction, it's what is shown

They don't really know, but he is special, I tell
(Lost for words, see the smile in his eyes)
All the dreams we share my come true
(All that you are gives a meaning)

They don't know how he feel inside

Surrounded by, posing pretenders
Say they care, deliver air
Hates to read, but loves how you write
No reating, it's what is shown

I lived my life in fear, shaken by tears
Always been sacred of falling apart when someone's near
I'm trying to hide, but it's all done in vain
Realize that memories fade, but never the pain
All we are from, all we are from
Make it okay, you're losing the strife
I fall for the world, it's a shell
Filled with emotions and life

Fill emotions with life

They don't really know, but he is special, I tell
(Lost for words, see the smile in his eyes)
All the dreams we share my come true
(All that you are gives a meaning)

They don't know how he feel inside
