

Scream

Esoterica

A letter to no one just mindless chatter a relentless pulse proves I'm alive, and there's no responses and none expected even though I'm sat here day and night, can nobody hear me I'm just one in a billion and drowned out I'm smothered by the world and I uncover my ears and I'm submerged in the din of the fearless, and fearless rule the world.

I don't want to be the one to let you down, but don't you know this world is far too tempting...

So won't you Scream.

Fill the pages with feelings, but it seems there's no one there,
it just lacks the expression that makes it beautiful, it appears so hollow till you feel it with your eyes and I know all about you, because I'm reading what I write.

So won't you Scream I wonder, I wonder what you'd write... Scream